The case is unique inasmuch as it is the first time the commonwealth has been called upon to prosecute its own officers on a charge of murder. There have been instimations a jury from another county may be asked and also that the case may be removed entirely to another circuit for trial, in view of the attitude of the people in this section.

W. C. Hall, J. H. Suillyan, H. F. Sweet and W. B. Dunleavy, the four prohibition inspectors, will appear in court tomorrow before Judge F. B. Whiting, to answer charges of having misrdered Raymond Blackleford and Lawrence Hudson, of Petersburg, Va. early on the morning of March 15 near Fisher's hill. Shenandosh county. Shackleford and Hudson, it is alleged, were endeavoring to escape in their automobile, after being arrested by Inspector Hall for attempting to transport 240 quarts of whisky from Baltimore to the Petersburg section. The shooting and killing of Shackleford and Hudson was resented by many who claimed the officers went too far in the discharge of their duty, and for feverall weeks feeling against the inspectors was intense. Hostile demonstrations occurred in Winchester against State Prohibition Commissioner Peters and his men, and when the inspectors were arrained for a preliminary hearing at Woodstock treops were sent from Richmond to guard the jail and courthouse.

Repatriation of Prisoners and Labor Questions Discussed and Changes in Paris Plan Proposed by Germans.

The German foreign minister states the German peace delegation has "noted with satisfaction" that the draft of the treaty recognizes in principle the repapensable that those war and civilian prisoners with great expedition, and says that special commissions which would include all beligerent states, it being pointed out that even during hostilities this has proved a most effective way of solving difficulties.

The note says this work should be much easier, now that the war is over, and would remove differences of conception or lack of clearness on particular points, such as legal conceptions in individual countries. The German delegation, it is said, considers it indispensable that hose war and civilian prisoners detained or undergoing punishment or other than disciplinary of flees should in principle be included among those to be unconditionally repairsized.

The note then proceeds:

"In a one-sided manner, some feel the stipulations have been made in favor of the allied and associated governments. For instance, those regarding the surrender of personal property, the search for missing objects and the care of graves might be cited. It is assumed in these questions a demand for complete reciprocity is founded on general human rights."

The note then proceeds:

"In the note then refers to a number of minor points, and proposes that deliberations by commissions should be begun speedily to clear up preliminaries in readiness for time when shipping and similar difficulties may be solved and the removal of the prisoners may be possible. It alludes to the importance to Germany that the prisoners return home under orderly conditions, insuring their reinstatement into economic life with the greatest possible dispatch, and says this seems only possible if every thing is done to "raise the moral and physicial state of those returning."

Since Germany's economic position prevents her by they own strength from providing the requisite guarantees, the delegation suggests the deliberations of the commissions might extend to the question of how far it would be possible on the part of the allied and associated governments to help Germany in the matter, and, for example, in return for the repayment of the cost, to provide the prisoners with new outfits, and the concludes.

Lawrence Visits Birmingham and Finds Sentiment of Business Men Strong for End of Government Control

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May, 12.-This ity has often been called the Pittsurgh of the South because of its great ron and steel industries, and in many respects it thinks like Pittsburgh. If you want to start something when an group of business men here happe to be together, say you are in favor of keeping the telegraph and telephone in the hands of the government, or else advocate government ownership of railroads. The sentiment is almost unanimous against anything of the sort onanimous against anything of the sort.

Senator Oscar Underwood, of Alabama, who is one of the most conscientious and able men who ever went to congress, is a member of the senate interstate commerce committee, which is going to handle the railroad problem in the next congress. Although he will be of the minority party, his views carry weight on both sides of the political aisie. He has been testing out sentiment, not only in Alabama, but in the South, and has come to the conclusion that the people want the railroads restored to private hands just as rapidly as they can be. But, as the Alabama senator pointed out to the convention of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' association, the railroads, when taken over, were "Inspitul cases," and must be carried back "on stretchers." In a few days," he said, "we are and most be carried back.

"In a few days," he said, "we are going to the operating room; the partient on the table will be the railroads. If we fail in the operation it will be reflected in your cash registers. If we succeed, it will be shown in increased prosperity.

Two Big Problems.

Two Big Problems.

"You ought to get freight rates cheaper than you are getting them now. There are two things to be considered: Adequate facilities of transportation must be provided, and the next problem is the maintenance and operation of the roads.

"I want you to visualize how great are the problems. One-twelfth of all the property of the United States is invested in the railroads of America. There are 260,000 miles of single tracks. This means, in the continental United States you have one-half of the railroad mileage of the world. The movement of freight on these railroads is more than twice that of the traffic and transportation of any other two nations in the world. The sverage capital of the railroads in America is $67,000 a mile. We think that's high, and in some places it is. There's probably some watered stock, but not nearly as much as you might think by reading certain journals. Yet the average capitalization of the railroads of other countries of the world is twice that here in the United States.

"Easter: railroads, I found, average 5.21 per cent of their capital: Southern nailroads, 5.28 per cent. That doesn't look so bad, but the trouble is that's an average.

"I cite two instances. I found the railroads, 8.38 per cent. In at doesn't look so had, but the trouble is that's an average.

"I cite two instances. I found the Chicago & Northwestern earned 6.13 per cent and the Chicago & Great Western 1.77 per cent. Now they're doing business in the same territory and serving the same business, interests. One of these railroads is forsity near at death's door. The other is strong and healthy and prepared to go on serving the public interests. Now these rates must be uniform. You can say you can finance the Chicago & Great Western by raising the rates, but, the rates being uniform, when the Chicago & Northwestern rates will be raised, too. Now how are you going to take care of the sick putient without letting one get a lot of the revenues to which it is not entitled. When the rates are raised the business men in that territory suffer accordingly. the rates are raised the business men in that territory suffer accordingly. "We felt we couldn't have won the war without taking over the railroads, and we won the war. Now we've got to pay the price, whatever it is. Records show an increased cost to shippers and packers of $500,000,000, yet there was a deficit of $200,000,000. Verily, it is a stretcher case.
